

Anna sends love - Mrs Poston would if she knew I was writing - Mrs P has put on a large stitcher which improves her house - I called at Mrs Washburn & she showed last evening her kind love to Mrs Stickney & knew you would hesitate home as soon as I heard he was sick - I am glad of this & am borrowing the needle & don't see how she can help him so.
Write as often as you can & know when she is to look about for days

Yours written Sunday was rec'd last evening & was most welcome I was very sorry Mr Stickney was ill & that your visit must as usual this summer be cut short - but I do hope you can persuade Mr F to go to the springs for a day or two at a time - what was the matter with him? I was all ready Thursday to go to F27 & Company came in - Ping said Mr F was at home & I found he was not feeling well - as it was early in the afternoon - I hope he is quite well now - The weather is delightful here the bus takes Anna at half past ten & I walk down to the beach - She takes a bath at the Mission where you were there at the grand & young lady - he seems a great favorite - he has a nice wife & two little girls. I think he boards at Mrs Sculley's. There are very few people here now altho' it is as delightful as you could want very little wind - I've no idea how long it shall be here it seems best Anne should stay as long as she enjoys it & I hope after a time Nancy will come down & stay a week or so -

I'm so glad you are at home to look after John I combed her faithfully - I don't see how you managed to get rid of the threat of you taking her in the washin - well you be able to go to the doctor - is Mrs. Steele enough to take to the funeral in Wisconsin St. - I hope you will see your father often tho', I don't think he is much longer now - and then sets the lunch time on the beach in the sun - I think she is quite as well as she was - better a little - Mrs. Perkins has very quiet boarders - Miss Pratt & the middle girl occupy the front room - a German lady the one at the head of the stairs & the one opposite the front room door - man, is a very sunny room & the bed altho' a single one is very comfortable a nice little German lady & baby have the cottage now delightful it would be if Hatty, Bessy & you were here now - Mrs. Perkins has taken up her dining room carpet & the walking on the floor is terrible - I wish my P could take things a little easier - I hope she'll learn to do so some time - I saw at the beach Mr & Mrs. Brayton & a Mr. Messer & his family you remember her here as a merchant

I had written several times. They my dear Lucy have since turned up Anne has rec'd no letter from you & has written but once not because she does not feel able but because she waits to hear from you - I have sent one postale & I thought you would like to hear a little more fully
- The weather is perfect - Anne breakfasts at half past seven after sleeping as she says from ten to twelve without waking - we have the bus come & she & I go to the beach & stay till past twelve every other day she takes a bath - in the afternoon we ride she drives - is not that ridiculous as weak as she is - but I'm no driver & she has as good a horse as her own to drive I really think Anne is brighter where they had

Thursday
all are known

than when we came down - she evidently enjoys being here & I am so glad the idea was put in her mind to come ~~down~~ - The company is such that she is just as free & easy as at her own home & Mrs. Perkins does every thing possible for her. I wish you could come down for a few days it would do you good - I heard Annie was not as well have you heard from her of late? - She has had too full a house I guess - their idea of ~~has~~ interesting so many ministers was unsuccessful in the extreme - Annie hopes to see Mr. Selle - I hope he will come - I can't write very long letters as I must write home with much love
